Make Memories

Aim for simcha, not perfect.

The beautiful table is nice.
The homemade donuts are nice.
The perfect party is nice.

But they aren't the point.

The goal isn't to squeeze everything possible into eight nights. It's to make room to notice the eight nights you're actually living.

Simple moments. Lasting memories.

A FEW PROMPTS FOR A MORE MEANINGFUL CHANUKAH:

- A tradition we love: _____
- Something simple we want to do together: _____
- Something we're grateful to Hashem for: _____

It's not about doing more. It's about noticing more.

The Gratitude Donut Wall

One night. One donut. One thank-you.

Each night, add one thing your family is grateful to Hashem for.
By Zos Chanukah, you'll have eight nights of gratitude.

A sweeter perspective changes everything.

Same Nights. More Gratitude.
